

WORK CE 1.107 Geezers, Boomers, Geeks, and the Millennium Kids:

How can they all get along in the “Workforce” Sandbox?

Working in this new “flat” world is more challenging than ever.

Because of the economy, improved health care, technology and education, the workforce is replete with multiple generations working side by side. Often, their conflicting styles, approaches, values, work ethics, needs and viewpoints are at odds with each other, and with the needs of their employer. The question that many are asking is “How can they all get along in this sandbox that we call the workplace.” Also, how do each of these generations with their unique life experiences approach entrepreneurialism?

This 3-hour seminar will feature moderator Keith Mudd, University of Houston - Victoria Small Business Development Center, panelists representing each of these very different generations, and a discussion of generational communication issues by Carole Peyton, Victoria College Adjunct Soft Skills Instructor. Trent Gannon, Best Buy Geek Squad, will bring the Geek Squad Mobile and some new technologies.
